The global studies master of arts is a two-year interdisciplinary "applied research" degree that combines scholarly rigor and practical skills. Students enrolled in the program will focus on analysis of transregional and transnational themes, events, and processes that affect states and societies around the world, such as transnational social movements; the diffusion of, and clashes over, political and social norms; and implications of global trade, investment, production, and employment patterns. The program’s courses focus on issues with contemporary global significance and policy relevance. Global studies is an emerging discipline, and UNC–Chapel Hill is at the forefront of defining the field and evolving methodological approaches.

The educational objectives of the program are to:

• Highlight issues of current and emerging global significance;
• Prepare current and future leaders with knowledge and conceptual skills needed for careers in international work; and
• Provide an education that trains individuals to understand and respond to the nature of global change.

Graduate-level Courses

GLBL 700. Introduction to Research and Theory in Global Studies. 3 Credits.
Global studies examines world systems, transnational processes, and global-local interactions from a multi-disciplinary perspective. This course will introduce students to current interdisciplinary theoretical approaches to global studies and examine the primary topics of contemporary research relating to the rise of a complex but increasingly integrated world society.

GLBL 701. Political Economy of Development. 3 Credits.
Presents foundational theories, concepts, and empirical research regarding the political economy of development. In content, course will define this topic broadly, from considering the political and economic dynamics of the international community (e.g., aid) as well as the intersection of economics and politics in comparative perspective (e.g., democratization and development).

GLBL 702. Global Politics, Institutions, and Societies. 3 Credits.
This course will address global governance and global public policy; interactions among states, international organizations, businesses, social movements, and NGOs. It addresses the diffusion and promotion of democracy and other norms and the interactions between political institutions and social cleavages. Students with this concentration must take one appropriate methodology class.

GLBL 703. Global Migration and Labor Rights. 3 Credits.
The course will focus on the interactions of migration, labor rights, human rights, economics, health disparities, and cross-border tensions. Students with this concentration will also take at least one appropriate disciplinary methodology class.
GLBL 730. Identities and Transitions. 3 Credits.
Capstone course for the REEES concentration in the Global Studies MA program. Interdisciplinary course focusing on the variety of problems encountered by the societies of East European countries and successor states of the former Soviet Union in their transition from communism to democracy.
Same as: POLI 746.

GLBL 789. Teaching Languages Across the Curriculum. 3 Credits.
Focuses on the pedagogy and practice of teaching Languages Across the Curriculum, a national movement to integrate foreign language use into interdisciplinary college courses outside the traditional language/literature departments.

GLBL 890. Special Topics in Global Studies. 1-3 Credits.
