Introduction
The study of communication is essential for participating in an increasingly complex and mediated global environment. The Department of Communication’s mission is to advance communication for the public good. Through its teaching, research, and service, the department addresses the many ways communication functions to create, sustain, and transform personal life, social relations, political institutions, economic organizations, and cultural and aesthetic conventions in society; promotes competencies required for various modes of mediated and non-mediated communication; and develops skills for analyzing, interpreting, and critiquing communication problems and questions. The curriculum is designed to enable students to develop the capacities to be knowledgeable and responsible producers and consumers of communication through engagement, critique, and creativity. The programs of study offered by the department reflects its vision of citizen-scholars building a better North Carolina and world.

Advising
Department advising for the major in communication studies is conducted by
1. a full-time lecturer/advisor who holds office hours in Bynum Hall and Steele Building (see the department's website (https://comm.unc.edu/) for the advisor’s office and office hours),
2. the director of undergraduate studies for the Department of Communication (see the department’s website (https://comm.unc.edu/) for the director’s office and office hours), and
3. representative faculty members.

Facilities
The department has extensive media production and performance studies facilities located in the Media Arts Space at 108 East Franklin Street and Bingham Hall. The Media Arts Space is home to state-of-the-art media production equipment, classroom space, and editing suites. It also houses Studio 6, where numerous live performances are staged. Bingham Hall contains the Martha Nell Hardy Performance Space.

Graduate School and Career Opportunities
Upon completion of their degrees, students are prepared for graduate study and research in communication. Advanced study may be pursued in a problem-defined approach to communication research. A substantial number of graduate assistantships allow M.A.-through-Ph.D. and Ph.D.-only candidates to gain experience in research, teaching, production, and administration. Graduate study is characterized by intensive participation in seminars, original research and creative activities, and close work with individual faculty members. Students are also prepared for advanced study in related academic disciplines such as law.

The career outlook for students with degrees in communication studies is promising, and graduates enter a variety of professions that value communication knowledge and skills. Communication studies majors are prepared to serve as communication specialists in business, in federal, state, and local governments and agencies; and in public service. Some of the specific areas in which majors pursue careers are teaching, social advocacy, nonprofit leadership and management, public relations and advertising, personnel management and training, management consulting, video and film production, and work with emerging technologies.

An understanding of communication provides a strong base for a range of career options. The mission of the department is to go beyond narrow technical training by providing a liberal arts approach to communication. This provides the student with maximum latitude for promotion and advancement and avoids limited career opportunities resulting from narrow approaches to the field.

The burgeoning growth of communication industries and support fields provides a range of career opportunities. Graduates of the department, who number well over 4,000, are engaged in a variety of occupations ranging from work for international corporations to jobs at local nonprofit organizations.

COMM–Communication Studies

Undergraduate-level Courses

COMM 51. First-Year Seminar: Organizing and Communicating for Social Entrepreneurs. 3 Credits.
This course examines the historical and current development of social entrepreneurship as a field of study and practice, with particular attention to successful organizational communication strategies designed to solve community problems.
Gen Ed: SS.
Grading status: Letter grade.

COMM 53. First-Year Seminar: Collective Leadership Models for Community Change. 3 Credits.
This course will explore communication models for collective leadership involving youth and adults in vulnerable communities. Partnering with local youth-focused organizations, students will work in teams to research and design community-based change projects.
Gen Ed: SS, EE- Field Work.
Grading status: Letter grade.

COMM 57. First-Year Seminar: Is There Life after College?: The Meaning of Work in Contemporary Life. 3 Credits.
Examines the historical emergence of work as a defining feature of contemporary life. The course asks, What is a "career"? How have neoliberalism and post-Fordism influenced understandings of work and career? How have changing conceptions of work influenced other aspects of life, including family, leisure, consumption, and self-identity?
Grading status: Letter grade.

COMM 61. First-Year Seminar: The Politics of Performance. 3 Credits.
In this course students will explore the possibilities of making political performances, or making performances political. We will be particularly concerned with how performance may contribute to processes of social change.
Gen Ed: VP
Grading status: Letter grade.

COMM 62. First-Year Seminar: African American Literature and Performance. 3 Credits.
This course examines the question of what characterizes "Blackness" as it manifests through experience, history, and symbol in the United States, as well as the impact of African practices and identities upon blackness in the United States. The course is concerned with what has been termed the "black literary imagination".
Gen Ed: VP
Grading status: Letter grade.

COMM 63. First-Year Seminar: The Creative Process in Performance. 3 Credits.
Students will be engaged with multimedia, music, dance, and theater performances. We will explore the creative processes and cultural contexts of these performances and will compare the arts as a way of knowing the world to the creative processes of academic scholarship.
Gen Ed: VP, CI, US.
Grading status: Letter grade.

COMM 73. First-Year Seminar: Understanding Place through Rhetoric. 3 Credits.
This seminar explores how we come to understand what places are and how they are meaningful. We will look at places "rhetorically": how they were designed to persuade those who inhabit them, how we actually experience them, and how we make sense of them in our individual lives.
Grading status: Letter grade.

COMM 82. First-Year Seminar: Food Politics from an Organizational Communication Perspective. 3 Credits.
This course provides an applied introduction to food politics by adopting a critical organizational communication lens on our globalized food system. We explore food system labor practices, the role of multinational companies and global commodity chains, the status of hunger and food deserts, the role of food marketing and consumption practices, and the growth of local and sustainable movements devoted to food justice.
Gen Ed: SS, CI, EE- Service Learning.
Grading status: Letter grade.

COMM 83. First-Year Seminar: Networked Societies. 3 Credits.
This seminar is designed to introduce early-career students to the role that networks play in contemporary global societies. We will examine key ways to think about network societies by taking up the idea of the network in social, political, economic, cultural, and technological terms.
Gen Ed: SS.
Grading status: Letter grade.

COMM 84. First-Year Seminar: Make A Zine! Do-It-Yourself Writing, Publishing, and Distribution. 3 Credits.
An introduction to the history, culture, and politics of "zines," self-published, small-circulation, noncommercial printed work. In this hands-on course, students will read, discuss, and create a wide variety of zines that explore a multitude of forms and genres. Students will be visited by local zine makers and participate in zine-making workshops; create a collection of their own zines; and participate in the Zine Machine: Durham Printed Matter Festival.
Grading status: Letter grade.
COMM 85. First-Year Seminar: Think, Speak, Argue. 3 Credits.
This is a course in learning to think more critically, speak more persuasively, and argue more effectively by focusing on practical skill development in reasoning and debate.
Gen Ed: CI.
Grading status: Letter grade.

COMM 86. First-Year Seminar: Surveillance and Society. 3 Credits.
How are surveillance technologies altering social life? This course will explore this question by mapping the complex ways that technologies and societies interact to produce security, fear, control, vulnerability, and/or empowerment.
Gen Ed: SS, NA.
Grading status: Letter grade.

COMM 88. First-Year Seminar: Technologies of Popular Culture. 3 Credits.
This seminar takes an historical approach to the relationship between popular culture and technological change. We will explore how artists and other workers (including audiences) in the TV, smart phone, and especially music industries have incorporated new technology into the production, distribution, and consumption of cultural commodities and experiences.
