LATIN AMERICAN STUDIES
MAJOR, B.A.

The five main goals of the Curriculum in Latin American Studies are

1. to enhance students’ knowledge of a world region of vital importance to the national interest of the United States;
2. to encourage the development of Carolina students as global citizens;
3. to promote critical language competencies and cultural skills as a way to prepare students to succeed in public and private sector careers;
4. for students to acquire multi-disciplinary forms of knowledge as a way to understand the array of forces that have shaped modern Latin America;
5. to foster an understanding of the historical and cultural origins of the Latin American communities in the United States.

Student Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the Latin American studies program, students should be able to:

• Demonstrate knowledge of the political, geographical, and social complexities of the region
• Demonstrate knowledge of the historical and cultural complexities of the region
• Demonstrate proficiency in Spanish or Portuguese (or other language(s) of the region if approved)
• Demonstrate an interdisciplinary grasp of Latin American literatures, arts, and ideas
• Apply basic research methods and skills and synthesize and evaluate scholarly research
• Gain admission to graduate programs or apply knowledge and skills learned in relevant careers

Requirements

In addition to the program requirements, students must

• earn a minimum final cumulative GPA of 2.000
• complete a minimum of 45 academic credit hours earned from UNC–Chapel Hill courses
• take at least half of their major core requirements (courses and credit hours) at UNC–Chapel Hill
• earn a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.000 in the major core requirements. Some programs may require higher standards for major or specific courses.

| Total Hours                                                   | 36 |

1  both courses may count in any sequence.
2  The first three levels of Spanish or Portuguese may count toward the General Education Foundations requirements and have not been included as additional hours for the major.

The Curriculum in Latin American Studies is divided into two concentrations: humanities and social sciences. These concentrations are further divided into sequences: humanities, into history and culture-literature sequences; social sciences, into journalism-political science and anthropology-economics-geography sequences. To ensure depth in a single discipline of Latin American and Caribbean studies, four of the 10 courses required for the major must be selected from one of the sequences. To ensure breadth of exposure to other areas of Latin American and Caribbean studies, two courses must be selected from each of the other three sequences.

Listed below are the most commonly offered courses in each sequence. Please note that not all the courses on Latin American and Caribbean topics are listed here, and many other courses may satisfy the major requirements. Special topics courses, first-year seminars, undergraduate seminars, independent studies, and capstone courses taught by Latin Americanist and Caribbeanist faculty members on Latin American and Caribbean topics also may count.

The following courses are recommended for fulfilling General Education requirements for students interested in majoring in Latin American studies:

Global Language
Spanish or Portuguese should be used to satisfy the global language requirement. The global language 1 through 4 sequence (PORT 101, PORT 102, PORT 203, and PORT 204 or SPAN 101, SPAN 102, SPAN 203, and SPAN 204) may be completed in two semesters by enrolling in intensive courses (PORT 111 and PORT 212, or SPAN 111 and SPAN 212).

Special Opportunities in Latin American Studies

Honors in Latin American Studies
Latin American studies majors with an overall grade point average of 3.3 are invited to pursue a degree with honors by writing an honors thesis during the senior year. Each honors thesis is written under the direction of an appropriate faculty advisor; when completed, the thesis must be defended orally before an examining board of faculty members. Honors candidates enroll in the two honors courses (LTAM 691H and LTAM 692H). LTAM 691H counts as a course in the student’s concentration.

Experiential Education
Students who are committed to field experience or experiential education in Latin America may be able to arrange for this through independent study credit. Students wishing to do so should have the academic support of a regular faculty member and contact the institute’s associate director well in advance of the semester in which the experience is to take place.

Intensive Yucatec Maya
Each summer the Consortium in Latin American and Caribbean Studies at the University of North Carolina and Duke University offers intensive instruction in modern Yucatec Maya, with a secondary focus on ancient, colonial, and modern Maya culture. The courses include classroom instruction in Chapel Hill (LTAM 411) or in Mérida, Mexico (LTAM 512 and LTAM 690), and a field study experience in Yucatán, Mexico. See the Maya program (http://isa.unc.edu/language-programs/yucatec-maya-institute/) website for current course information.

Independent Study
Any student may enroll in independent study (LTAM 396) with the permission of the curriculum faculty advisor and the agreement of a Latin American or Caribbean studies faculty member who will supervise the student’s independent study project. This course may be used to fulfill the requirements of the major, and it is often linked to internships or to undergraduate grants for summer research travel.

Study Abroad
Study abroad is not a requirement of the major; however, living and studying in Latin America or the Caribbean is highly recommended as an experience that majors should consider. The UNC—Chapel Hill Study Abroad Office offers a broad range of programs in Latin America and the Caribbean. Visit the Study Abroad Office website (http://studyabroad.unc.edu). ISA and the Study Abroad Office offer competitive scholarships for majors wishing to undertake study in Latin America and the Caribbean.
Undergraduate Awards
Each year the Latin American Studies major offers funding opportunities (https://isa.unc.edu/undergraduate-funding/) for students conducting research or studying abroad in Latin America or the Caribbean. These include the Julia Crane, Halpern, and Mellon Awards. The Federico Gil award recognizes the best undergraduate honors thesis written on a Latin American or Caribbean topic. The LTAM Major Book Fund provides funding to defray the costs for required textbooks in Latin American-content courses. Contact the director of undergraduate studies for information.

Undergraduate Research
Latin American Studies majors are eligible to develop independent and/or senior thesis projects. A small number of grants are available for undergraduate field research related to Latin America or the Caribbean.
